

Another Successful Virtual Forum in 2022

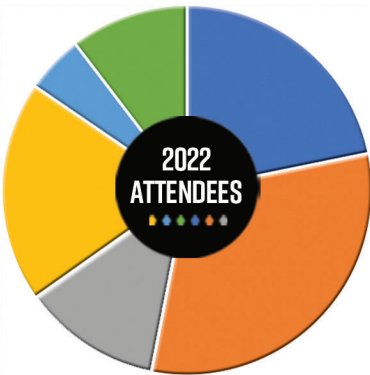

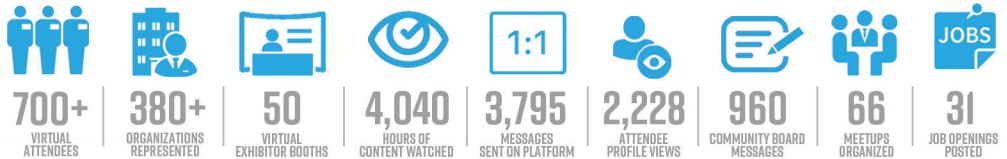

The 19th Annual BC Natural Resources Forum returned January 18-20, 2022, for its second virtual offering. While the event was shifted online for the health and safety of all participants, the Forum remained a space for fantastic networking and collaboration on the shared challenges and exceptional opportunities that lie ahead for the natural resource sector in British Columbia and Canada.

Thank you to the speakers, sponsors, exhibitors, and delegates that, together, made this virtual event a huge success!

Stronger Together with BC's Natural Resources

Over the span of three days, participants heard frank discussions from our speakers and panelists on how we are Stronger Together with BC's Natural Resources. This included:

- leaders from the mining, mineral exploration, forestry, and energy sectors' analysis of the challenges and opportunities facing our Province's natural resource industries;
- speakers on important topics and themes in the province such as decarbonization, workforce and talent development, Indigenous partnerships and attracting investment to BC;
- an examination of the resiliency in our supply chains and how interconnected our rural communities and urban centres are – both across BC and Canada; and
- the popular Ministers' Roundtable returned where BC's key Ministers outlined today's challenges and tomorrow's objectives.

We encourage you to visit the BC Natural Resources Forum YouTube page to view video footage of Keynotes and panel discussions.
